GETTYSBURG, PA., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1914

NO. 12

BATTLEFIELD STATISTICS

FROM GETTYSBURG NATIONAL MILITARY PARK COMMISSION

Extracts from Report for Fiscal Year Ending June 30, 1914, With some Interesting Figures

The commission consists of Col. John P. Nicholson, chairman; Maj. Charles A. Richardson, commissioner; Lieut. Col. E. B. Cope, engineer.

Employees are 5 guards, 1 assistant superintendent, 1 store and time keeper, 1 roddman, 1 messenger, 1 hostler, 1 inspector, 1 artisan, and 34 laborers, 5 of whom have teams.

The employees of the commission are capable of doing much of the work in the different branches of mechanics and labor heretofore done by contract, except in cases where material, tools, and mechanical appliances have to be purchased for the specific work, as for piking avenues and roads, for building large bridges, furnishing fencing and ironwork, gun carriages, and tablets for bronze tablets, and for granite work, monuments, markers foundations, etc. These are bid for and furnished upon contract.

CONTRACTS.
The contracts made by the commission not heretofore recorded in our annual report are as follows:

For building avenue in rear of Pennsylvania Monument, for painting five towers, for erecting the Lincoln Gettysburg Speech Memorial, for piking two avenues, for 500 panels post fencing, for granite pedestals, for bronze tablets, for building culvert on Hunt Avenue, for piking roadway around Sedgwick Statue, for 1000 panels post fencing, for 400 tons screenings, for painting the Meade flagpole at Meade's Headquarters, for painting flagpole at Cavalry Field, for 500 tons screenings, for 500 tons screenings, December 1, 1913, for 500 tons screenings, February 2, 1914, for hospital tablets, February 11, 1914, for hospital pedestals, for grading and piking avenue foot of Culp's Hill, February 26, 1000 panels fence material, April 8, for restoring seven damaged monuments, April 29, for restoring two damaged monuments, for repairing iron work of tower roofs, for foundations for hospital markers.

HOSPITAL MARKERS.
Authority has been given the commission by the Secretary of War to mark hospital locations with suitable markers of granite and bronze. Contracts were made with the Van Amringe Co., of Boston, Mass., the lowest bidders, for the granite pedestals, and with Albert Russell & Sons Co., of Newburyport, Mass., for the bronze tablets. This work is progressing and these monuments will be completed before August 1, 1914. They will be erected at the following places:

The First Corps hospital marker, near White Church, on the Baltimore pike.

The Second Corps hospital marker, on the Hospital Road, 700 feet south-west from the George Bushman house. Said road runs south from the Baltimore pike, crossing Rock Creek below White Run, and continuing north-easterly to the Baltimore pike at White Church, and named the Hospital Road.

The Third Corps hospital marker, on the Hospital Road, 1500 feet north-west from the John Trostle house.

The Fifth Corps hospital marker, on the Hospital Road, 1200 feet north of the M. Fisco house.

The Sixth Corps hospital marker, 600 feet north of the John Trostle house, near the Hospital Road.

The Eleventh Corps hospital marker, on the Hospital Road, 700 feet east of the George Spangler house.

The Twelfth Corps hospital marker, on the Hospital Road, 500 feet west of the George Bushman house.

The Cavalry Corps hospital marker, in front of the Presbyterian Church, Gettysburg.

The General Hospital marker (Camp Letterman), in front of the Hospital Woods, on the York pike, 1.04 miles northeasterly from Center Square, Gettysburg.

The suggestion to mark, for the first time, with appropriate legends the hospital locations on any battlefield came from the commission to the War Department, and no individual had any part in the suggestion.

MONUMENTS, ETC.
The Wells Statue was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies on July 3, 1914.

The statue was erected by the Van Amringe Monumental Granite Co., under contract with the State of Vermont.

Additional work is in progress on the Pennsylvania memorial. Displacement and erection of tablets have been placed on the upper coping during the year, names have been added on the tablets, and one new tablet was placed June 10, 1914.

Robertson's Brigade marker, Confederate States of America, was furnished by persons in Texas represented by Mrs. Mabel M. Bates, of San Antonio. The marker was erected September 27, 1913.

The pedestal for the Virginia monument was finished May 6, 1912. No bronze work has been placed thereon, and it is therefore incomplete.

A pedestal with bronze tablet was erected on McGilvery Avenue, in Excelsior Field, on November 25, 1913. It marks the first position of McGilvery's Artillery Brigade in the battle of Gettysburg.

A small pedestal with bronze tablet was set up on Hancock Avenue, near the Bryan House, to mark the position of the One Hundred and Seventh Pennsylvania Infantry. This location had been marked by representatives of the regiment for a number of years by a board with the number of the regiment and State painted on. This new marker is a permanent one, and was erected October 2, 1913.

Brevet Maj. Gen. Wadsworth's statue was dedicated Oct. 1914.

A bill authorizing the erection of bronze statues on Gettysburg Battlefield to three Pennsylvania generals, Brig. Gen. John W. Geary, Brig. Gen. Andrew A. Humphreys, and Brig. Gen. Alexander Hays, was passed by the legislature of Pennsylvania in 1914. These statues have been modeled and accepted by the Pennsylvania-Gettysburg Memorial Commission. The locations were marked at each site and approved by Col. Nicholson, chairman of the Gettysburg National Park Commission; also by the Assistant Secretary of War, June 10, 1914.

DAMAGED MONUMENTS.
An appropriation of $7022 was made by Congress October 22, 1913, to restore nine monuments on Gettysburg Battlefield that were damaged by a vandal March 4, 1913. A contract was made with the Van Amringe Co. of Boston, Mass., to dismount, renew, and erect the new parts on seven of the monuments. A contract was also made with L. H. Meals, of Gettysburg, to repair two of the monuments. By the terms of these contracts this work will be completed December, 1914.

AVENUES.
Contracts were made with M. & T. E. Farrell, the lowest bidders, to grade and pike an avenue at the foot of Culp's Hill, terminating in Slocum Avenue at the east and west ends; also an avenue on land deeded to the United States, the piking to connect with the piking at the foot of East Cemetery Hill, a total distance of 2,142.04 feet. These avenues were completed June 30, 1914.

REPAIRING AVENUES.
Contracts were made with Samuel Robinson to furnish, deliver, and spread on the avenues and roads of the battle field 1000 tons of limestone screenings. These have been delivered and spread on 30 miles of avenues and piked public roads at a total cost of $1850, or about $60 per mile, for one year: rolling after spreading the screenings not included. Thousands of automobiles have used these avenues and piked roads this year, and during the four days of the encampment thousands of machines passed over them daily, whilst from 5 a. m. to 11 p. m., July 3, 7,147 automobiles, representing from their licensed tags every State in the Union, passed over the prepared and published route for the movement of all vehicles. By care and supervision these avenues have been maintained without great damage.

The sides of the public roads ceded to the United States that have been piked are kept dressed and the weeds and grass destroyed. The gutters along the avenues are kept clear of weeds through the spring, summer and autumn.

GUTTER PAVING AND REPAIRING
In the early spring as the frost begins to come out of the ground and the earth settles, a force of workmen go along the gutter paving and the sod along the banks and drive them down with heavy rammers, and there is no trouble by displacement during the year. The workmen are engaged in paving the gutters along Hunt Avenue, where gutters have not been paved. They will complete the work in July of this year. The ground along this avenue is of such a nature that unless paved it washes badly.

GUNS MOUNTED.
Two gun carriages mounted with Napoleon guns were placed at the second position of the Ninth Massachusetts Battery opposite the Trostle house. The battery was withdrawn from its first position on the Wheatfield Road by prolonge in the midst of the battle on July 2, 1863, and brought to this second position. It is represented by the two guns and two wreaths of shells and a tablet describing the history of the battery in the battle.

In August, 1863, two guns were recovered on gun carriages and placed in the first position of Stewart's Battery B. Fourth United States Artillery on the northeast side of Chambersburg Pike, between the pike and railroad cut west from Gettysburg. The battery was in action there on July 1, 1864.

FENCING.
The contract made with John C. Foyde February 1, 1914, to furnish and deliver 1000 panels post fencing was completed by the material and labor furnished by the contractor to date.

On February 26, 1914, a contract was made with J. J. Nauke, of Orrama, Adams County, Pa., to furnish and deliver 1000 panels post fencing. A part of the material has been delivered and erected on United States land. The contract expired October 1, 1914.

BUILDINGS.
Outbuildings were erected on United States farms by the carpenters and artisans employed by the commission, as follows: One new building on the Trostle farm and one new building on the Culp farm.

Repairs have been made to the following buildings, all United States property:

At the Culp farm repairs were made to the sheds by the addition of new doors, also new spouting for rear of barn and some repairs to partitions of stables.

Two new windows were put in east end wall at the Weikert property and a new roof on part of the barn and new stripping on the hopen.

At the Bushman farm repairs were made to the wall of the spring and to the floor of the crib.

REGULAR NOVEMBER COURT

SHOCKING CASE FROM NEW OXFORD ENDS IN FINES

The Criminal Calendar was Cleared by Monday Afternoon

November court began on Monday and though there was less than a score of cases on the criminal calendar the entire business had been disposed of by end of the afternoon.

The constables were first called and sworn and made the following returns. Road in Oxford township from Louis Brady's to Lilly's Mill out of repair. Road from Paul Storm's to Mt. Misery out of repair.

In Mt. Pleasant report was made that the ballot box was not taken to the Justice of the Peace where it belongs.

In Hamilton township the railroad crossing was out of repair on Oxford road; also repairs needed on road leading from Brough road to the Hanover turnpike.

In Straban township the index board was not up at David Tipton's road. In Hamilton township the culvert at U. H. Cromer's farm on Virginia Mills road broken down.

In Bendersville a stretch of pavement 12 or 14 feet long not laid in front of Harry Rice's property and in rainy and muddy weather it is impassable.

The Grand Jury was sworn, Joseph Holz, Esq., a former County Commissioner, was appointed foreman and they acted on three cases as follows:

Com. vs. George Craig, assault on oath of Peter Shultz, a true bill.

Com. vs. Svril Rice, assault, was found not a true bill and county to pay costs.

Com. vs. Mary C. Weaver, assault and battery, on oath of Mary E. Weaver, was found a true bill, and defendant not being present her recognizance was forfeited, to be respited if she appeared at the January court.

A number of cases had been settled prior to the regular term, as follows: Com. vs. Herbert Matthews, surety of peace by Elizabeth Matthews, his wife, was settled Sept. 16.

Com. vs. Clarence Myers, assault and battery, by John B. Forry, was reported settled.

Com. vs. John Young, carrying concealed weapon, by W. W. Enmons, Oct. 19 defendant plead guilty and was discharged.

Com. vs. James Hale, begging, by C. H. Wilson, defendant plead guilty in Oct. and was sentenced.

Com. vs. Dorsey James, carrying concealed weapon, by C. H. Wilson, and assault and battery, by Ralph Wood, defendant plead guilty and was discharged in October.

Com. vs. Calvin Kump, fornication and bastardy, case settled Nov. 9.

Com. vs. Kamps Kister, larceny as bailie, by Harry Stevens, was continued.

Com. vs. Robert Johnson, fornication and bastardy, by Virginia Caldwell, was continued.

Com. vs. Charles Sperrman, fornication and bastardy, by Samuel A. Dunlap, case settled and costs paid.

Abraham J. Guise and John L. Sharpe, Esqs., were appointed attorneys for the first week.

Criminal cases disposed of by the court were as follows:

James Sadler, Chas. Maus, Emory Myers, and Earl Staub, all of New Oxford, boys over sixteen years of age, charged with immorality with Marie L. Albright, also of New Oxford, under sixteen years of age, the court for statutory rape having been not passed on motion of District Attorney. The boys manifesting levity when before the court, the severest punishment affixed to the offense by law was the infliction of the maximum fine of $100 each and costs, and the fines and costs were paid by the defendants. It was shown that the prosecutrix was a girl of very bad reputation and it is cases of this kind that suggest the need of protection to the community by sterilization.

Chas. Mackley having plead guilty to the larceny of a pair of shoes from the store of his father, J. C. Mackley, in Mummashburg, was put on probation for one year with his father as surety.

Samuel James Waters a negro child of Gavenstown, Baltimore Co., Md., indicted for larceny or attempted larceny of the automobile of J. H. Homan on the 14th of September, was tried, and showed on his defense that he got into the car for the purpose of this court from Round Top to Gettysburg, without any intention of running off with the car, he having no knowledge whatever of its control, and was acquitted. Having been struck by Wm. Tipton, battlefield guard with a cane and having been in jail almost two months, he certainly suffered severely for an innocent man.

George Craig, colored, was indicted for assault on Peter Shultz, they being neighbors on West High street in Gettysburg, the charge being an offer of threat to throw a brickbat. The court without making the appropriate distinction between assault, and battery, but considering that the proper remedy of the prosecutor, would have been by surety of the peace, which could have been heard before a Justice of the Peace, directed a verdict of not guilty, costs to be paid by the county. It would appear desirable that Peter and his family should be kept out of the quarter sessions. He could be much more profitably employed elsewhere and should not be paid for his prosecutions out of the county treasury.

The report of the viewers of a road in Union township was adverse.

Upon petition of Mary Walhay, widow of Dale Walhay, who was one of the heirs of Wm. Walhay, late of Biglerville, an order was made for the appropriation of the children's share of the estate for their maintenance and education.

The sale of the real estate of Frederick Trimmer, deceased, by Hon. Geo. H. Trostle, administrator, was confirmed nisi. Also the sale of the real estate of Michael Kugler, deceased, in Fairfield Borough, by Emmanuel Cluck, to Theodore A. Low of Fairfield for $1450.

An order of sale was awarded of the real estate of Alfred E. Howe, deceased.

In the Common Pleas with a trial list of seven cases, on the suit of Emma S. L. Yeagy vs. Henry Menges, an appeal from the docket of Chas. K. Yeager, Esq., J. P., was settled, four others were continued, leaving two for trial, for which juries were selected on Monday afternoon and excused from attendance until Thursday, November 12th.

In divorce cases, Commissioners were appointed as follows: Chas. S. Duncan, Esq., in the suit of Gertrude E. Althoff vs. John E. Althoff. Norman S. Heindel, Esq., in the suit of Alma Cook vs. Edward O. Cook.

Upon petition of the Town Council of East Berlin Borough showing a vacancy in the office of Burgess by reason of the removal of Noah W. Sell the court appointed H. A. Phillips Burgess.

The bride is a graduate of the Harrisburg High School. She is well known in Gettysburg, having visited here many times and attended dances held at College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College and is identified with the Sheet Metal and Supply Company, of Lancaster, as secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Raub will reside in Lancaster.

Number of Deer Shot.

Deer season opened on Nov. 10 and will continue for fifteen days and more than twenty camps are located along the mountains in the western part of this county. Among the members from town in the camps are the following:

Cashtown Club near Harver Newman's, to right of Chambersburg pike. Paul Martin, Henry Kalbfleisch, Samuel Weiser and James Melhenny.

Monterey Rifle Club, to left of pike, near Newman's, Wm. B. Flemming, Moses Blair and Horace Smiley.

Marsh Creek Hunting Club, F. Mark Bream, E. E. Slaybaugh, Ralph Detrick, John Slaybaugh, and Arthur Hutchinson, J. Allen Eicholtz and Irvin Reynolds.

Arendtsville Hunting Club, Jas. Eicholtz, Charles B. Tate, Peter Bruner, Geo. W. Baker, Robert C. Miller, John Hall, John D. Kane, Herman Kane.

Brysonia Club, two miles west of Pine Grove Furnace, William J. Eden, B. D. Williams, George A. Taylor, Walter Mehring and Joseph Butt.

The McKnightstown Club, composed of members from that town and vicinity, will be located north of Cole's Field, in Buchanan Valley. The Rouserville Camp will take up its grounds on the site of the Cold Springs Hotel, while the Locked Antlers Club, of Fayetteville, two of the oldest on the mountain, will again be on their old camp grounds.

Deer hunting proved good on the first day.

The Arendtsville Club reports two kills, both nice sized bucks. The one was shot shortly after seven o'clock in the morning by Francis Cole, and the other was killed in the afternoon. Mr. Cole's deer had six prongs and weighed 203 pounds. The other successful hunter was Carmon Crum, who shot a three prong buck.

The Kane Club in Buchanan Valley killed a deer during their first day's hunt, but the name of the hunter who shot it we were unable to learn.

The following hunters not connected with any camp shot a deer each: John Degroft, Cashtown, 10 prong buck; William Bowman, of near Cashtown, 9 point buck; Carl Sheppard, Cashtown, 10 prong buck; Albert Irwin, Buchanan Valley, and Mr. Alberts of Altoona, 2 prong buck.

Deer hunting clubs at the end of the second day's activities report several more of the fleet footed animals to the total killed. The various camps report successful "drives" and the deer seem to be very plentiful, from statements gathered after another day of hunting. The laurels for the killing of the first deer by a Gettysburgian go to Arthur E. Hutchinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hutchinson, of West High Street.

Young Hutchinson is a member of the Marsh Creek Hunting Club and is the proud possessor of an eight prong buck that weighs 170 pounds.

The deer was killed by the hunter on the first shot. Irvin Reynolds, also of this place, got the first shot at the animal, but missed him and when he came toward Hutchinson received the fatal shot and fell in his tracks.

A dring doe was discovered Tuesday about three hundred yards from the Marsh Creek Camp by two hunters, who immediately reported their find to members of the camp. The doe had been shot and left lie by some hunters when it was found to be a female deer. The Marsh Creek Club dared not end the suffering of the animal, neither could the finders of the body, but notified a State Ranger, who came to the spot and gave them permission to kill it. He then removed the carcass.

The Arendtsville Club got its third deer Wednesday about twelve o'clock when Charles Eicholtz, a brother of S. Mc. Eicholtz, County Commissioner, brought to earth a 6 point buck that weighed 125 lbs.

The Monterey Camp killed two deer Wednesday, but we were unable to learn who the successful hunters were. George Kane, of the Kane Camp, killed a 2 prong buck on Wednesday.

The McKnightstown Club, formed this year, got its first deer Wednesday, shot by Allen Retert. E. W. Chronister, of New Oxford, who was hunting with a party of friends, killed a nice 2 prong buck that weighed 100 pounds. A. M. Duncan, of Stewartstown, with a party of friends passed through town Wednesday with a four point buck on one side of their machine, the prize of Mr. Hartman, who shot the animal near the Ashland Inn.

Lincoln Tablets Dedicated.

A place made historic fifty-one years ago, but allowed to remain in obscurity since, is to be marked with appropriate bronze tablets next Thursday.

Mr. J. W. Johnston, a prominent citizen of Rochester, N. Y., attended services in the local Presbyterian Church during the great Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle, and learned that President Lincoln had occupied a seat in that church on the evening of the day he dedicated the cemetery. Recently Mr. Johnston proposed to present the church with a tablet to mark the spot in the church. The matter has grown and on next Thursday at 6.45 p. m., three tablets, two to Lincoln and one to John Burns, will be unveiled in the church and one at the entrance. The last is the gift of Col. E. B. Cope, and tells that Lincoln attended a meeting in the church on the day he delivered his immortal address.

A program of rare interest has been arranged for this occasion. The two principal speakers at the church will be Dr. T. C. Billheimer and Judge William McCann. Mr. Johnston will make the address of presentation. He will also deliver a stereoscopic lecture full of new material on points in the battle on which hang the ultimate victory. This lecture will be delivered at the World Theatre next Thursday at 4 p. m. Both these services are open to the public. This is an event of interest to the entire community.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE

Feats of a Strong Man.

Well known in the old buffalo days of Saskatchewan was Joe Beaupre, famed a thousand miles as the biggest eater in the north. Joe was not six feet tall, but he was a broad, deep, thick sort of man, with a hand like a ham and a stomach like nothing else in the world. He would eat an entire boxful of apples at one sitting and think nothing of it. Once, having encountered a gentleman who thought he was some eater, Joe consumed fifty-three pounds of buffalo meat in one day and topped off with a raw turnip, a six pound piece of pork, some lard and two loaves of bread. The best his competitor could do was thirty-seven pounds of meat. Beaupre was so strong he never would fight any man for fear he should kill him. One day, while mending on a narrow trail with an obstinate horse, he became angered, struck the horse on the head with his fist and killed it. He loosened the harness and threw the dead animal on one side of the trail. He never really knew how strong he was. Beaupre died of rheumatism while still a young man.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Seventh Inning Stretch.

It is a simple ceremonial, but impressive, like all manifestations of the soul of a multitude. I need only close my eyes to call up the picture vividly. It is a day of brilliant sunshine, and a great crowd of men is seated in the open air, a crowd made up of all conditions, ages, races, temperaments and states of mind. The crowd has sat there an hour or more, while the afternoon sun has slanted deeper into the west and the shadows have crept across greensward and hard baked clay to the eastern horizon. Then, almost with a single motion—the time may be somewhere between 4 o'clock and 5 o'clock—this multitude of diverse minds and tempers rises to its feet and stands silent, while one might count twenty perhaps. Nothing is said. No high priest intones prayer for this vast congregation. Nevertheless, the impulse of 10,000 hearts is obviously focused into a single desire. When you have counted twenty the crowd sinks back to the benches. A half minute at most and the rite is over.—Simeon Strunsky in Atlantic.

Virtue of Peanuts.

The oil of the peanut has a quieting effect on the pneumogastric nerve, the largest nerve supplying the stomach. Many nervous persons who like peanuts and do not know why, like them for this reason. They quiet the nerves of the stomach. These persons should eat a few fresh roasted peanuts after each hearty meal, as many nervous conditions are due to an irritation of the pneumogastric nerve, and the peanut oil acts as a sedative to this nerve. Of course the nuts must be crisp and well chewed and not too many taken. To get the best sedative effect a handful of the hot peanuts should be eaten just before retiring. This presupposes that the powers of elimination are in good repair. The peanut, a member of the pulse family, is nutritious and would clog the system if not eaten correctly, as it is almost equal to meat.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Putting It on the Map.

Captain Cook shows in his "Voyages" how some of the mouth filling place names on maps are evolved. "Off New Zealand there is an island called by the natives 'Matuaro.' One of my officers, having asked a native the name of that isle, the latter replied, 'Kematuaro,' putting 'the' before the name, as is the custom. The officer, hearing the sound imperfectly, repeated his question, whereupon the native repeated his reply, emphasizing it with the word 'oela,' which means 'indeed.' So in the logbook Matuaro was transformed into 'Kumetiwarroela.'—London Globe.

He Rivalled Cicero.

Quintus Hortensius, the Roman orator, would have come down in history with great fame had any of his speeches been preserved. He died in the year 50 B. C. He was a soldier and statesman, and his mentality can be judged from the fact that he was a rival of Cicero.

His Future Assured.

"I don't know what to do with that kid of mine."
"Is he disobedient?"
"Not exactly. But whenever I tell him to do a thing he wants to debate the matter a long time."
"He will grow up to be a senator."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

To Remedy a Leaking Pen.

If one is troubled with a leaky fountain pen the application of a little soap to the threads of the screw will work magic. If the pen is emptied, thoroughly cleaned, filled and the soap applied there will be no more trouble until the pen needs filling again.—Exchange.

Looking Ahead.

Practical Father—Has that young man who wants to marry you any money? Romantic Young Lady—Money? He gave me a cluster diamond ring. Practical Father—Yes, I know. But has he any money left?—Exchange.

Verified.

He—And, judge, she's lost a lot of my money playing bridge. She—Don't believe him, judge. I don't know a thing about the game. He—That's right, judge.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Envious.

"Your wife is very fond of dumb animals."
"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "Sometimes I most wish I had never learned to talk."—Washington Star.

Straw For Hats.

The greater part of the straw employed for making summer hats comes from Italy. To obtain suitable straw for this purpose the wheat is sown as thickly as possible in order that the growth of the plant may be impoverished as well as to produce a thin stalk.

The Italian wheat blooms at the beginning of June and is pulled up by the roots when the grain is half developed. Should it be allowed to remain in the ground a longer time the straw would become too brittle for its purpose.

Uprooted straws to the number of about five dozen, the size of the compass of the two hands, are firmly tied together in little sheaves and stowed away in bales. After that the straw is again spread out to catch the heavy summer dews and to bleach in the sun. When the product has been sufficiently bleached it is put into small bundles and classified.

The last step is to cut it close above the first joint from the top, when it is again tied up in small bundles containing sixty stalks each and is then ready for the market.—Chicago Herald.

Too Much of a Breakfast.

Even Peacock's generous ideas of suitable provisions for a breakfast were surpassed by a London host who entertained J. L. Motley, Aug. 3, 1867. Motley writes to his daughter: "I went to the last breakfast of the season of the Philobiblion society, given by Mr. Turner, a collector of rare books. Beginning with coffee and tea, we ended with sherry, champagne and maraschino; fish, cutlets, rois, salads, game, puddings and ice going on meanwhile in regular order. If you asked me what I did I can only say I opened my ears to the animated and intellectual conversation and my mouth, not to eat, but to gape and gasp and wonder at the prodigious consumption of victuals at that hour of the day. When I reflected that all those people would lunch at 2 and dine at 8 I bowed my head in humiliation, and the fork dropped from my nerveless grasp."—London Chronicle.

Looking Down From High Places.

Why do you feel dizzy when you look down from the top of the house or even from the upstairs porch? Just because it's so high, eh? That's true, but it's only half the answer. You know, of course, that your power to keep your balance on your feet depends largely on your vision or sight. When you walk in the dark you stumble and bump against things because you are not used to walking without seeing. It's the same when you are away up above the ground and cannot see familiar things in their familiar places. Your eyes play you tricks, you seem to lose your balance, and your head feels giddy and your steps are uncertain. If you practice long enough you can learn to walk without seeing, but until you have learned that lesson be careful when you climb to high places.—Wisconsin State Journal.

Scott Liked Work Pressure.

Scott, who was poet, novelist, lawyer, too, would have been greatest of all as journalist. Listen to this from his journal for Feb. 15, 1826: "Yesterday I did not write a line of 'Woodstock.' Partly, I was a little out of spirits. . . . Partly, I wanted to wait for some new ideas. . . . Partly, I was a little too far beyond the press. I cannot pull well in long trances, when the draft is too far behind me. I love to have the press thumping, clattering and banging in my rear. It creates the necessity which almost makes me work best. Needs must when the devil drives." . . . There is the very spirit of journalism, and that devil surely is the printer's devil!—London Standard.

Do You Know?

Most people are fond of good puzzles, and many are not entirely happy until they have solved them, but the man who resolves not to go to bed until he has found a divisor without a remainder (other than 1 and itself) for 1,111,111,111,111,111 will be able to earn a good living afterward as a sleepless wonder, for nobody in the world yet knows whether that number has a divisor or not.

Songs of a Nation.

Andrew Fletcher, a Scotch writer, who died in 1716, wrote to the Marquis of Montrose, the Earl of Rothes and others: "I once knew a very wise man that believed that if a man were permitted to make all the ballads of a nation he need not care who should make the laws of a nation."

"There's some good things in town this week," said the girl who was hinting for an invitation to the theater.
"Well," responded Mr. Grouch, "I ain't one of 'em."

Modern Seamen.

The new ship has transformed the sailor with itself. He works among a subtle and intricate network of machinery. His brain is quickened by the effort to understand the new forces and appliances that he controls. He is drawn no longer from the lower strata of the population of our ports, but in increasing proportions from the ranks of skilled mechanics. The electricians and machinists, who are the aristocracy of the crew, bring with them the notions which prevail among the aristocracy of labor out of uniform. They possess more reading and more science than did nine out of ten of the officers in the old days. They have a respect for themselves and their class, which has revolutionized the morals and manners of the modern warship. The gradual reform of the service regulations has sought to keep pace with this transformation, and officers have been educated in a wholly new conception of their relationship to their men. The bullying and hectoring which was the rule of the sea in the old days is today the rare exception. Instinct and "good form" condemn that kind of thing as severely as the regulations.—Nation.

If an Ant Were as Big as a Man.

An ant can carry a grain of corn ten times the weight of its body, while a man or horse can carry loads only about equal to its bodily weight. It is not a fact, however, that the ant is greatly superior in strength. If an ant should grow to twice its original size, still retaining its geometrical and histological structure, its volume, and accordingly the weight of its body, would increase eightfold. Although the muscles grow to twice their original dimensions, the increase in length does not increase the strength, which is proportional to their cross section, and the ant would only be four times as strong as before. As it now carries but five times its weight, however, it is relatively only half as strong. It is calculated that the same ant developed to the size of a man would only be able to carry one one-hundredth of its own weight instead of ten times its own weight.

Thrashing Wheat in Cyprus.

The ancient Roman tribulum, as used for thrashing, may still be seen in the island of Cyprus. It is a board about six feet long and two feet wide, studded with sharp edged flakes of flint. In use it is dragged by oxen or donkeys over the corn spread out on the hard earthen thrashing floor, separating the grain and at the same time bruising and chopping up the straw. Thrashing time is enjoyed alike by children and animals, the former riding on the primitive implement and the latter gorging themselves with a hearty meal, for in Cyprus the Biblical command, "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn," is still faithfully observed. Although the government offers to thrash by machine at nominal cost, the conservative Cypriote prefers the old method. He says that the animals will not eat machine chaffed straw, and straw they must eat, for there is no hay in Cyprus.—Wide World Magazine.

First Fiction Known.

The "Tale of Two Brothers" written 3,200 years ago by the Theban scribe Ennana, librarian of the palace to King Merenptah, the supposed Pharaoh of the Exodus, is the oldest work of fiction extant.

The tale was written apparently for the entertainment of the crown prince, who subsequently reigned as Seti II. His name appears in two places on the manuscript, probably the only surviving autograph signatures of an Egyptian king.

This piece of antique fiction, written on nineteen sheets of papyrus in a bold hieratic hand, was purchased in Italy by Mme. d'Orbiney, who sold it in 1857 to the authorities of the British museum, where it is now known as the D'Orbiney papyrus.

The Master's Voice.

"We have come," said the chairman of the committee, "to ask you to take this nomination. The city needs a man like you—strong, brave, self made, self reliant, owning no master, fearing no man."

The great man was visibly touched. "I'll not deny," said he, "that your kind words have shaken my resolution. I trust that, if elected, I may justify your confidence and prove that I am indeed strong, brave, self reliant; that I own no master and fear no man. Suppose you wait a minute till I see if my wife will let me accept?"—New York Times.

Coarse and Fine.

The finer the nature the more flaws will it show through the clearness of it. The best things are seldomest seen in their best form. The wild grass grows well and strongly one year with another, but the wheat is by reason of its greater tenderness liable to a bitter blight.

Trademarked.

"If my little brother Willie ever gets lost we can easily find him," said small Eloise.
"How, pray?" queried the visitor.
"He's got a strawberry trademark on his right arm," was the reply.—Chicago News.

War Tax Revenue

The revenue from which the expenses of the United States Government are largely paid is raised by a tariff upon importations and a tariff schedule has always been maintained sufficient to give the necessary revenue for government expenses. When the European war stopped importations it became necessary to raise revenue for the expenses of the government in other ways and the war tax bill recently passed by Congress provides the needed new income. The people of this community may feel the new war tax revenue in the following direct ways:

The banks must pay $1 per $1000 of capital stock, surplus and undivided profits; proprietors of moving picture theatres, academy of music and high school auditorium, taxes ranging from $10 to $75; bowling alleys and billiard rooms, $5 for each alley or table; holders of bonds and certificates of stock, 5 cents on each $100 of value; promissory notes 2 cents per $100; express and freight bills of lading, 1 cent each.

Telegraph and telephone messages, 1 cent each; conveyances, 50 cents on values between $100 and $500, and 50 cents for each additional $500 of value; fire insurance policies, 1 cent on each dollar of premium; power of attorney, 10 cents; protests of notes, etc., 25 cents each; parlor car seats and berths, 1 cent; manufacturers of cigars, whose annual sales do not exceed 100,000, $3; 200,000 cigars, $6 and on up.

Among the other taxes are these: Beer, $1.75 a barrel; rectified whiskey 5 cents a gallon; all domestic still wines, 8 cents a gallon, and 55 cents a gallon on all grape brandies used in fortification thereof; champagnes 25 cents a quart; liquors and cordials 24 cents a gallon.

The maximum revenue it will yield is estimated at $107,000,000 a year; the minimum, based on possible slump in beer production, $92,000,000.

The war tax measure will only be in force for one year.

Play by Father Whalen.

A play written by the Rev. Father W. W. Whalen, assistant rector of St. Patrick's cathedral, Harrisburg, called "The Ladder of Life," will be presented this winter by the Harry Davis players in Pittsburgh. The leading role may be played by Nance O'Neil.

There are six characters in the play, three from high society and three from the masses. The heroine is a school teacher in a small town, who loses her place through political interference and is forced to go to a larger city to work as a stenographer. She is there employed by a man who has unhappy home life and unintentionally becomes the means of a separation between him and his wife.

On his proposal of marriage to her she refuses and leaves his employment but afterwards through a series of coincidences she is convinced of his love and accepts him. She is the mouthpiece of the masses in her conversation during the play and exposes the evils of high society life as seen by a working woman.

Morris and His Furniture.

In "William Morris—His Work and Influence" is retold how the two friends, Burne-Jones and Morris, setting out to keep house together in the new historic rooms, 17 Red Lion square, found themselves confronted with the unendurable ugliness and vulgarity of mid-Victorian furniture. Says Mr. Clutton-Brock:

"Their rooms were to be furnished, and Morris could not find in any shop a single new table or chair that he could endure. This was not mere fastidiousness. To him vulgarity in furniture was, like vulgarity of manners, the expression of a wrong state of mind, and if his own furniture had been vulgar he would have felt as responsible for it as for his own manners. Therefore he designed furniture to please himself, making drawings that were carried out by a carpenter. Thus simply and naturally he began his business of 'pevic upholsterer.' . . . From the first he was not only an artist, but one who tried to make the world what he wished it to be and, beginning with armchairs, ended with society."

Theatrical Superstitions.

Paris, a city of theaters, is full of theatrical superstitions. Nearly every one associated with the theater has some sort of mascot. Thus, M. Fernand Samuel, manager of the Varieties, always wears an old and battered straw hat as a luck bringer at every first night. Mme. Ristari used to walk in a cemetery on the day when she had to appear in a new part, and Mlle. Brevet collects old horseshoes.

Mlle. Mary Garden always consults a clairvoyant before undertaking a new character, and Vera Laparevitch and Mme. Berthe Baye never dream of going on the stage without touching wood.

M. Henri Bernstein believes that there is some curious fetish in the name Zambor. He puts it in all his plays with different orthography. There is always a character called Zambor, Zambor, Zambor, Zambor, Zambor.—London Express.

Sound Deflection.

Sound does not always travel through the air in a straight line. It often happens that two zones of sound are separated by a zone of silence. In 1908 an explosion of dynamite on the railroad then building up the Jungfrau was heard in two different zones. The first extended through a radius of forty kilometers around the explosion. The other began at a distance of 140 kilometers, the sound being unheard in the intervening 100 kilometers. Similar phenomena had been observed elsewhere, and physicists tried to explain them by the reflexion of the sound waves from certain atmospheric strata. Professor Fujiwara, who has studied such matters during volcanic eruptions in Japan, asserts now that these phenomena depend upon the direction of the wind in the middle strata of the atmosphere.

NEW DIRECTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY

Our representatives wear this badge.

The publishers of the old reliable FARM JOURNAL of Philadelphia, are preparing to publish the Illustrated DIRECTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY, giving the name, post-office, rural route, and telephone connection of every farmer, business man, and householder in the county, all arranged alphabetically, and a classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY, including all business houses in the county, arranged under the proper headings.

With the Directory is given a complete ROAD MAP of the county, with every road NUMBERED to show the exact location of each farm, as given in the Directory.

This Directory will contain many interesting PICTURES of well-known farmers and business men of the county, fine farms, thoroughbred stock, churches and public institutions, schools and pupils, etc.

The names and necessary information are being secured by PERSONAL CANVASS of all houses and business places, and of the 3752 farms in the county. This Directory and Road Map are so useful and interesting that from our experience in other counties we can guarantee that the Directory will go into at least TWO THOUSAND HOMES OF ADAMS COUNTY, where it will be constantly used by farmers and business men for the next five years.

The Farm Journal Directories are an immense improvement over directories, containing what most publications do not give. Beside all the usual information, they give the names, addresses, telephone connection, and other important information about FARMERS, secured by PERSONAL CANVASS from each farmer himself. This canvass of country districts is so costly that most directory publishers cannot afford to make it, and ordinary lists of farmers published are in nearly all cases merely copied from official lists.

The classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY includes every business house in the county, whether in city or country. In other directories the names of houses in cities and large towns only are given.

These features with the ROAD Map, makes the Farm Journal Directory an indispensable hand-book for every live farmer and business man in the county.

If you are not sure that correct information about your farm or business has been given to one of our canvassers, please send it direct to our main office.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE

FIGHT OF NATIONAL AND STATE AUTHORITIES

Statement From the Secretary of Agriculture in Regard to the Federal Measures.

The Secretary of Agriculture has issued the following statement regarding the quarantine for foot-and-mouth disease:

The present outbreak of the foot-and-mouth disease, which is one of the most contagious and destructive diseases of cattle, swine and sheep, exceeds in area affected any of the five previous outbreaks in this country. Unless the infection can be immediately localized and quickly eradicated, it threatens untold losses among live stock.

So contagious is the disease that in past outbreaks where but one animal in a herd was infected, the entire herd in almost all cases later contracted the sickness. While the mortality is not high the effects of the disease even on animals that recover are such as to make them practically useless. They lose flesh rapidly; in the case of cows, the milk dries up or is made dangerous for human consumption; in the case of breeding animals, the animal once infected becomes valueless for breeding, as it may continue to be a constant carrier of contagion.

It is possible to cure the external symptoms, but during the process of attempting to cure one sick animal the chances are that hundreds of others may be infected. The treatment or killing of a single animal in a herd was tried in an outbreak and did not prove effective, for the reason that the remainder of the herd soon became affected and had to be killed.

As a result of the five outbreaks in this country, and other disastrous epidemics of the disease in Europe and Great Britain, veterinary authorities of the United States are agreed that the only method of combating the disease is to stop all movement of stock and material which have been subjected to any danger of infection, and to kill off without delay all herds in which the disease has gained any foothold. This enables the authorities to eradicate affected herds and to isolate and hold under observation all suspected herds.

For these reasons, the Department of Agriculture has already quarantined ten States for the foot-and-mouth disease. The Federal quarantine prevents all interstate movement of stock and materials likely to carry the infection. At the same time, the State authorities are imposing local quarantines which prevent the passage of animals from farms or localities known to be infected to other localities in the same State in which the disease has not appeared. Each infected herd as rapidly as the disease is discovered, is killed and the dead animals buried in a covering of lime. The skins of the animals are slashed so as to permit the rapid action of the lime.

The owner of the slaughtered animals is reimbursed on basis of the appraised value of the herd, the appraiser being appointed by the State. The expense of the whole process of condemnation and disinfection is divided equally between the Federal and State Governments.

Until the entire premises have been thoroughly disinfected and all danger of spreading the disease removed, the farm is quarantined by the local authorities in the same way in which it would be for a contagious human disease. This local quarantine prevents the visit of individuals or the transfer of any produce or animals from the farm to other farms. In some cases, because human beings can carry the disease to other herds, the State authorities have prevented children on infected farms from attending school. In other cases, as in Illinois and Ohio, the State authorities have closed the stockyards until they can be cleaned and disinfected.

The first effort of the Department is to discover and segregate all animals sick with the disease or that have been exposed. To this end, the Federal and State inspectors are now tracing up through bills of lading and railroad records, all shipments of live cattle which have been made during the last sixty days out of any of the infected or suspected districts. The bills of lading are secured and used to check and immediately communicate with the shippers. In this way the presence of foot-and-mouth disease is kept under control. Various places in the present outbreak are now under Federal quarantine, such as, for example, Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Delaware, Maryland, Michigan, West Virginia and Iowa. Similarly, the number of all cars in which animals have been transported from these districts have been obtained, and these are being located and thoroughly cleaned and disinfected.

Following the imposition of a general Federal quarantine, and the killing of actually infected herds, comes a farm-to-farm inspection of the entire quarantined area. Later, when it becomes clear that the disease has been localized, it will be possible for the Federal and State authorities to free from quarantine all but the actually infected counties or districts, and allow the unaffected territories to resume interstate shipments of stock.

The State Live Stock Sanitary Board has directed a quarantine on ten counties which directs that to prevent the spread of the disease no cattle, sheep, goats or swine shall be moved in or out of the counties of Allegheny, Delaware, Lancaster, Philadelphia, York, Chester, Montgomery, Franklin, Lebanon and Bucks. In conclusion the order says:

"It is forbidden to drive, transport or move cattle, sheep, goats or swine over or upon public roads, highways, or railways in the counties aforesaid except upon specific permission in writing from an agent of the State Livestock Sanitary Board expressly authorized to issue such permits."

"Permits for driving, transporting or moving cattle, sheep, goats, or swine over the public roads, highways or railways must be taken out in advance and must be held by the person in charge of and accompanying such animals, and must be kept available for inspection."

"It is ordered that no cattle, sheep, goats or swine shall be shipped by rail in Pennsylvania except in newly cleaned and disinfected cars. So far as possible, cars shall be cleaned and disinfected at established and specially equipped cleaning and disinfecting stations, then sealed and sent to the place where the cattle, sheep, goats or swine are to be loaded. Stock cars not newly cleaned and disinfected must not be permitted to enter Pennsylvania."

"The transportation of hides, skins and hoofs of cattle (including calves), sheep, and other ruminants, and of hay, straw, or similar fodder, from the aforesaid quarantined area, is prohibited unless the said hides, skins, and hoofs and all hay, straw, or similar fodder be disinfected prior to movement under the supervision of an agent of the State Livestock Sanitary Board."

"Cattle for purposes other than immediate slaughter (except apparently healthy calves under six months of age and steers) originating in other States not under quarantine are subject to regulations of December 12, 1913, which require that such cattle be accompanied by a certificate of health and tuberculin test chart or by a permit signed by the State Veterinarian of Pennsylvania."

HISTORY OF OUTBREAK

The present outbreak first appeared in southern Michigan. How it was introduced there is not known. Shipments of diseased hogs from this place, which passed to Chicago are believed to be responsible for the infection of the pens in the Union Stockyards. Once the yards became infected there was danger that every shipment of live stock through Chicago to other parts of the country might pick up the germs of the disease and spread the contagion. These shipments, composed largely of feeders and stockers, were sent to farms for fattening and did not remain in Chicago long enough for the disease to show itself in external symptoms. Some of the cattle, carrying the contagion, after shipment develop external lesions and this accounts for the outbreak of the disease in States as far apart as Iowa and Massachusetts. For this reason a large force of Federal inspectors is now running down every shipment and examining the animals or herds at their place of delivery.

At present the chief danger lies in the possibility of there being concealed sources of infection. Every effort is being made by State and Federal authorities, not only to trace suspicious shipments, but to convince farmers of the seriousness of the disease and the extreme ease with which it is communicated, and to urge upon them to report at once to State or Federal authorities all suspicious cases of sore mouths or lameness.

An English Author Wrote:

"No shade, no shine, no fruit, no flowers, no leaves.—November 17." Many Americans would add no freedom from catarrh, which is so aggravated during this month that it becomes constantly troublesome. There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, completely cures catarrh, and taken in time prevents consumption. We cannot see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. It is undoubtedly America's Greatest Medicine for America's Greatest Disease—Catarrh. Advertisement.

Miss H. V. Kavanagh, of near Gettysburg, was the victim of a peculiar ailment while in the hospital for a number of years. The ailment was a sore throat which made it impossible for her to eat or drink. It was a terrible affliction, and she was in great distress. She was finally cured by a certain medicine, and she is now well and happy.

Do the right thing if you have Nasal Catarrh. Get Eli's Cream Balm. Don't touch the catarrh with your fingers, for they contain germs. Eli's Cream Balm releases the secretions that inflame the nasal passages and the throat, whereas medicines made with mercury merely dry up the secretions and leave you no better than you were. In a word, Eli's Cream Balm is a real remedy, not a delusion. All druggists, 50 cts., or mailed by Eli Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. Advertisement.

SCOTT & BOWNE, BLOOMFIELD, N. J.

Stevenson's Retort.

An interesting letter is Stevenson's in reply to an autograph hunter who had spelled his name with a "ph" instead of a "v."

"The few lines with which you have found time to honor me," he replied, "contain certain indications of your character on which I take pleasure in dwelling. They show you so careless of giving trouble to me that I am myself careless how much offense I may convey to you, and they are so ill penned that I am tempted to hope you will discover a difficulty in perusing my answer and place it unread in your collection. The next time it shall occur to you to trouble an author as you have troubled me find out—I do not say what he has written; far less would I suggest that you should read it—but find out how he is in the habit of spelling his unpunctuated name and give him upon that point the battery of imitation."—Chicago Herald.

Making Shot.

Even among sportsmen there are probably many people who are not acquainted with the manner in which shot is made. The process is carried out at what is known as a shot tower. This is a tall tower of metal or stone with a tank at the top filled with molten lead. The bottom of this tank is perforated with holes, and there is a slide underneath it, also perforated. This slide is pulled from side to side, and every time two holes come opposite each other a small quantity of molten lead falls through. As these drops fall through the air they assume a globular shape, and if the tower is of sufficient height they solidify before reaching the bottom. Here they fall into a tank of cold water and are cooled. When the shot has to be small the slide is worked more quickly than when it has to be larger.—Pearson's Weekly.

Her Seven Sons.

A mother who had only one child, a son, lost him through an accident by drowning when he was seventeen. His body was washed out to sea and never recovered. She very much wanted a portrait of him, and she called a famous artist who was a friend of the family. He asked for every photograph she had of her son from babyhood onward. When the painting arrived it represented a glade in a wood. Playing about were five little children of various ages, but all the same boy as his mother had known him. Coming down the center, joyous, gay, was the seventeen-year-old lad leading his baby self of one year by the hand. The mother looked at the picture and burst into tears. "I have lost seven sons!" she said.

Law Lord in a Cell.

Lord Russell once gave a lecture on his imprisonment in Holloway jail. The thing that impressed him most strangely during the early period of his confinement was being without his pipe and watch. He was perpetually feeling in his pocket to see the time or for matches or tobacco. He soon got over the want of smoking and after six weeks obtained leave to wear his watch, the absence of which worried him more than having no tobacco pouch. When he went into prison the governor asked his religion, and he replied, "Atheism." This answer seemed to puzzle the official, who said he supposed it was Protestantism or Catholicism. And "Atheism," Lord Russell was asked, "is a religion?"

Old Time Bathing.

What was the bathing in England in the old times? It was a little over a century ago. When ladies went to bathe, they were sure to announce the fact, and any gentleman who desired to go with them after he had secured a bottle of wine. When the ladies had been bathed and completed their toilet, the gentlemen had their turn.—London Opinion.

New Zealand Nicknames.

New Zealand is described by its inhabitants as "the happiest country in the world." It is now a dominion. Some of the pretty names given to it by New Zealanders are "The Fortunate Isles," "The Wonderland of the Pacific," "All Lands in One" and "The Star of the South."

Well, Aren't They?

"Yes, I certainly advertised for a valet," said the gentleman in reply to the man on the lookout for a berth, "but you're as old as the hills."

"Well, sir," answered the applicant, "begging your pardon, aren't valets always as old as the hills?"—Exchange.

PROPHECIES ABOUT THE WAR

NOW RAGING IN EUROPE AND HAS DEVASTATED BELGIUM

A Curious Lot of Strange Predictions Preserved in Song and Story.

A noted Frenchman in speaking of actual modern prophecies which came true, calls the phenomena a "mysterious instinct without being able to explain it." It is this "mysterious instinct" or the vision of the seer that surged through Walt Whitman, our great American poet when years ago he wrote:

"I see Freedom, completely armed and victorious, and very haughty, with Law on one side and Peace on the other.
A Stupendous Trio, all issuing forth against the idea of caste:
What historic denouncements are these we so rapidly approach.
I see men marching and countermarching by swift millions;
I see frontiers and boundaries of the old anstocracies broken;
I see the landmarks of European Kings removed;
I see this day the people beginning their landmarks (all others give away)

The mass of the prophecies being recalled these days are from European sources and they are most interesting whether explained as a mysterious instinct, or strange coincidences or visions of seers, or what not. The New York Sun in recent issue gives the following among many others.

In Berlin the famous prophecy of the Monk of Hehin is remembered. Three centuries back it announced the establishment of the Hohenzollern empire and "the lamentable end of the third Emperor of that family."

The song of the Woman of St. Ingbert is being repeated. All of her verses have come true, except the following:

"When Germany shall be her greatest then the fall must come. I see waves of blood. The horses of the Cossacks drink in the Rhine and Blue."

The prophecy of Rosa Columba of Taggia a village on the Riviera, is well known in the South of France. She died in 1837. Rosa Columba was of such beauty and goodness that from the age of 15 she was called "the human angel." Cardinal Manning himself admitted that she had foretold the fall of Louis Philippe, the defeat and exile of Charles Albert of Sardinia, the restoration of Pius IX. "by a Napoleon," the defeat of Austria and the establishment of the kingdom of Italy.

A last prediction of Rosa Columba remains to be accomplished. She announced another revolution in Italy and a general European war in which (strange detail) "Russian soldiers will bed their horses in the church of the convent of Taggia."

Nostradamus, greatest of French prophets, died in 1566. Enriched by Henri II., he nevertheless foretold his death "in gold by iron," a prophecy verified by the fact that the King was killed by Montgomery's spear while wearing his jousting helmet. He foretold that Montmorency would be "beheaded by Percin," which was not the name of any Governor, noble, Captain, Judge or executioner. Ten years later Montmorency, taken in rebellion, was ordered to be summarily beheaded. The headman not being present, a common soldier volunteered and did it neatly. "What is your name?" they asked him. "Percin," was his answer. A German mathematician has calculated that the chances against a mere coincidence of this kind are "as the stars against a grain of sand." Well, the quatrains of Nostradamus have been strangely borne out by events, and they characterize 1913 as "the year of perils." Note it is 1913 and not 1914, a very curious circumstance, as will be seen.

In the German revolutionary year, 1848-1849, the then Prince William of Prussia, later William I., fled from Berlin. The famous Mme. Lenormand, who had foretold to Napoleon and Josephine separately, before their marriage, their unimaginable rise in the world, still lived, aged 85, in Paris. Prince William went to her for consultation.

"Shall I become Emperor of Germany?" he asked. "Certainly," she answered. "When?" he asked. "Take this year of German fate," said Mme. Lenormand, "and add to it the sum of 55 digits—1849+1+5+4+9, equals 1871."

"How long shall I be Emperor?" he asked. "Until your death," she answered. "When?" "Do as before: 1871+1+7+1+1, equals 1888."

"Shall my heirs continue to reign Emperor?" asked William. "Yes," said the pythonesse. "Until—" "When?" "Add always," she said solemnly: 1888+1+7+5+8+8, equals 1913."

Again the reference to 1913, instead of 1914. Vosnegensky, the Russian peasant who in 1775 predicted the rise and fall of Napoleon, foretold that "in 1913 an empire shall crumble and a kingdom be reborn." Susannah Weil, an Antwerp banker's wife, in 1813 saw the "devolution of Belgium" in 1913, "the suicide of an Emperor in war," the death of an Emperor held secret," "a King proclaiming the republic" and "a republic proclaiming a King."

From generation to generation the people have transmitted that prediction that the Plam of Cernay (or Sennheim, where fighting is now going on, soaked with such old waves of human blood, must be the scene of the most gigantic battle of the world, to "put an end to the wars of nations" and "in which so many men will perish that there remain after the carnage only women and children."

"A boy of 14 will announce the end of the battle and raise above the mountain of the dead the flag of the world's peace!"

The Day.

BY HENRY CHAPPELL

The London Daily Express, which printed this poem, said of it: "The author is Mr. Henry Chappell, a railway porter of Bath. Mr. Chappell is known to his comrades as the 'Bath Railway Poet.' A poem such as this lifts him to the rank of a national poet." "Der Tag," or The Day, has been for many years past a German military toast.

You boasted the Day, and you toasted the Day,

And now the Day has come.
Blasphemer, braggart and coward all,
Little you reck of the numbing hail,
The blasting shell, or the "white arm's" fall,

As they speed poor humans home.

You spied for the Day, you lied for the Day,

And woke the Day's red spleen.
Monster, who asked God's aid and wine,
Then strewed His seas with the ghastly mine;
Not all the waters of the Rhine
Can wash thy foul hands clean.

You dreamed for the Day, you schemed for the Day;

Watch how the Day will go,
Slayer of age and youth and prime
(Defenceless slain for never a crime)
Thou art steeped in blood as a hog in slime,
False friend and cowardly foe.

You have sown for the Day, you have grown for the Day;

Yours is the harvest red.
Can you hear the groans and the awful cries?
Can you see the heap of slain that lies,
And sightless turns to flame-split skies
The glassy eyes of the dead?

You have wronged for the Day, you have longed for the Day

That lit the awful flame.
'Tis nothing to you that hill and plain
Yield sheaves of dead men amid the grain;

That widows mourn for their loved ones slain,
And mothers curse thy name.

But after the Day there's a price to pay

For the sleepers under the sod,
And He you have mocked for many a day—

Listen, and hear what He has to say:
"Vengeance is mine, I will repay."
What can you say to God?

Artificial Lighting

The hours of working days have been materially lengthened from what they were a century ago. Necessity being the mother of invention has made this possible by the evolution of our system of artificial lighting.

It is a far cry from the tallow dip to the tungsten lamp. Reaping the benefits of the increased activities which have been made possible by the advancement of science in this direction it is imperative that every precaution should be taken to save our eyes from unnecessary strain and overwork.

The abundant and diffused illumination from day light is much easier upon the eyes than direct and concentrated artificial light as is commonly used. Therefore, it is desirable to secure the nearest possible approach to day-light. Clear globes should be dispensed with and frosted ones substituted in their place. The eyes unconsciously direct themselves toward glaring lights and a few hours work will result in considerable strain of the eyes.

For general illumination in churches, stores, lecture halls and hospitals reflected lights which cut off the direct rays from the vision seem to represent the most improved system thus far devised. For the work bench, reading, bookkeeping and similar occupations, the direct light shining from a frosted globe on the work and properly shaded to keep it from the eyes, is as yet unsurpassed.

Workers and students should exercise all possible care in providing themselves with adequate lights as it will result in greatly increased efficiency. Slight defects of sight are apt to become accentuated by the strain incidental to working in poorly lighted rooms.

Essay on Shoes.

Shoes come in pairs. They go the same way except in the case of solo legged persons.

Horseshoes are signs of good luck except when planted in the middle of one's person by the accompanying horse.

In former times we wore shoes as seldom as possible.

Our feet were about four stubs stouter than the stubborn gleebe that Mr. Elsey Gray writes about.

In the gentle springtime when we first divorced the leaky winter boots that had grown lirkome the southern exposure of our farm feet was of about the consistency of patent leather.

In June it resembled horn. In September harveyized steel had nothing on our hoofs.

Between barefoot days when we attended Sunday school, circus or some other devotional exercise we wore congress gaiters.

The congress gaiters (one of ours is now on exhibition in the Smithsonian Institution) had an elastic gore on each cheek.—Indianapolis Star.

Taught by Example.

Mrs. Mordecai Hammersted turned pale as her husband entered the dining room for breakfast.

"Mordy," she gasped, "do you—don't you feel well?"

"Perfectly," he replied in seeming surprise.

"But—but you are in your"—

"Tell me something I don't know. Pass the butter, please."

She passed the butter, remarking nervously, "But, Mordy, dear, as you came in I saw you didn't have any shoes on."

"Well, what of it? Your hair is in curl papers, isn't it?"

"Why—yes."

"And you have on a wrapper."

"Yes."

"Very well, then."

And he went on eating his breakfast in silence except when he asked her to pass the butter. Then he went upstairs and finished dressing, and the next morning and on succeeding mornings she reported for breakfast in regular clothes.—Boston Journal.

Changing Matter.

"Can the diamond be destroyed by intense heat?" asks a reader.

Yes. Any substance known can be vaporized in the fierce heat of the electric furnace. The word "destroyed" should not have been used. Diamond is chemically pure carbon—that is, lamp-black—and the same quantity still exists after the diamond has vanished. Man is now able to destroy the form of all matter known to chemists—that is, matter disappears as matter, only to resolve back into its primordial electrons. These are pure electricity, and nothing else exists. These man cannot create nor destroy. All that any human can create is a thought that had not been created before. But this is a theory, for all thoughts may be eternal. But here one must stop, for our minds cannot think of the meaning of the word eternal.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Burns' Cottage.

The Burns cottage at Ayr is under the charge of trustees, who purchased it in 1881 from the Ayr Shoemakers' incorporation for the sum of £4,000. The birthplace of the poet had up till that time been in use as a public house. The trustees abandoned the license and after a time removed a hall and other extraneous buildings which had been added to the premises and restored the cottage buildings as nearly as possible to the state they may have been in in Burns' time. A new museum was built at the northeast corner of the grounds. Most of the relics were removed to the museum, which now contains a priceless collection—a first or Kilmarnock edition of the poet's work, for which £1,000 was paid, and Burns' family Bible, acquired at a cost of £1,700.—London Answers.

Beef in Boston in 1743.

A writer in the Yale Review, who notes that in 1740 beef could be bought in Boston at 12 cents a pound, seems to imply that that price was all it was worth. "Invariably a steak for dinner was heralded by the vigorous pounding with the potato masher wielded by the stalwart arm of the cook." The meat, in fact, often came, he tells us, from the carcasses of "a cow that no longer gave milk or a bull that had lost its bloom."

Glove Silver.

Glove silver was the strange name given to a custom which prevailed in England during the middle ages—namely, the granting of a certain sum of money to servants to buy gloves with on Lammes Day, or, as it is called now, bank holiday.—London Saturday Review.

A Mistake Avoided.

"I say, old chap, I'm in shocking luck. I want money badly and haven't the least idea where I can get it."

"Well, I'm awfully glad to hear that. I thought perhaps you had an idea that you could borrow from me!"—Sydney Bulletin.

Unhappy Marriages.

The reason why so few marriages are happy is because young ladies spend their time in making nets and not in making cages.—Jonathan Swift.

Not Musical.

DEATH LIST OF A WEEK

FORMER CITIZEN KILLED IN RAILROAD ACCIDENT

J. E. Masemore, Miller at Creager's Mill Dies Suddenly in his Mill.

ISAIAH HANKEY was killed last week in a railroad accident at Terre Haute, Ind. Mr. Hankey was a native of Adams county and went West many years ago and was aged 70 years. For the last ten years he has been a night watchman for one of the railroads at Terre Haute. Particulars of how he met his death have not reached here, only the fact that he had been accidentally killed. He is survived by one brother, John Hankey, the last of the family, living on Chambersburg street this place.

J. E. MASEMORE, a well known miller of the county, died at his home near New Chester last Saturday morning of heart failure. He was a miller by trade from his youth and well known in this county. Mr. Masemore has been conducting the mill known as Creager's mill, for the last 12 years. He started to the mill Saturday morning as usual to attend to his duties, and he was found about 9:30 by some one coming to the mill. He was 74 years old and is survived by a widow and seven children, also three sisters. The funeral was held Tuesday, the Rev. William Nickle of New Chester, officiating, interment being made at St. Jacob's Church near Glenville.

MRS. ANNIE COLEMAN EMLET, wife of David S. Emlet of Hanover, died after a brief illness Tuesday, Nov. 10. She was aged 79 years and 14 days. The death came as a great shock to the family and friends following so closely the death of her daughter, Mrs. Henrietta Beish, last Wednesday. Mrs. Emlet was a daughter of Henry Coleman and wife, late of New Oxford. She was born and her early life was spent on the Winebrenner farm, later the Sprengle farm, now the property of Guy S. Rebert, along the Carlisle pike, near Hanover. Mrs. Emlet was a life long member of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church. On December 25, 1876, she was married to Mr. Emlet, who survives with four children, Miss Alveta Emlet, Charles Emlet and Miss Ada Emlet at home; and Mrs. C. F. Bremen of Birmingham, Ala.; also one sister, Mrs. Charles Haar of New Oxford, and two brothers, Daniel Coleman of this place, and Harry Coleman of Altoona.

JOHN F. P. MARSHALL, a brother-in-law of Dr. J. L. Sheetz, of New Oxford was found dead in a field on his farm at Womelsdorf Station, Berks county, on Monday. Death was due to apoplexy. He was 60 years of age and was the father of Dr. John Marshall, who is known to many New Oxford people.

JACOB HENRY KOONTZ died at his home in Idaville, Nov. 7th, aged 60 years, from cancer. He is survived by his wife and three children, Elmer Koontz of Idaville, Route 2, Mrs. Oliver Smith of Mt. Tabor and Mrs. Wilbert Herman at home; two brothers, Andrew and Daniel Koontz, Idaville, two sisters, Mrs. Barbara Rupp and Mrs. Lizzie Rupp, Idaville R. R.

Mrs. J. J. GROH, a former resident of this county, died at her home in Springfield, Ohio, on November 1st at the age of 29 years. Mrs. Groh was the youngest daughter of Frank T. Manahan and in her early life lived in Highland township. She has been living in the West since her marriage. Her father left here about a year ago, having resided along the Fairfield road about three miles from this place. He has lived lately with his daughter. The funeral was held in Springfield.

JAMES HOWE, a highly respected citizen of Hamilton township, died Monday afternoon at the toll gate along the East Berlin and Hanover turnpike. He was 76 years, 3 months and 4 days old, death being due to a complication of diseases. Mr. Howe is survived by his widow and five children. The funeral was held Thursday with services at the house, interment being made in Union cemetery, East Berlin. Rev. F. C. Sternat officiating.

JOHN C. TAYLOR, a former resident of Adams county, dropped dead Monday morning from an attack of neuritis of the heart, while attending to his duties as sexton of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, in York. Mr. Taylor moved to York about ten years ago from Straffen township where he had resided for twenty-five years as tenant on the Picking farm. FI FI of the Toy Shop. FI FI of the Toy Shop, one of the greatest shows ever given by home talent and picturesque from the start. Finish, charming and delighted the large audience at Walter's Theatre, last Friday evening.

The story opened with the part of Tackhammer, the toymaker, taken by Lawrence Sheads, and Bonnie the Toymaker's daughter, by Miss Genevieve Power, who is overtaken in the forest by the Sandman, Mr. Becker, and is cast into a magic sleep. She is visited by Aurelia, the Fairy Queen, Miss Amy Swope, and receives a bottle of smelling salts with which she brings to life all the toys in the toymaker's shop, FI FI, the French Doll, by Miss Lillian Ring, Loosey Rag Doll by Miss Lucile Bender, Ink Spot, topsy doll, by Miss Lillian Kitzmiller, Lieut. Tin Heart, Donald Icker, Prince Lolly Pop, Chester Simonson, Capt. Barnacle, Jacob Rudisill. Other dolls in the shop were the Dolls Head, by Miss Mary Kohler, Bo-peep, by Miss Helen Pfeiffer, Talking Doll, by Miss Mahelle Lott, Jap Doll, by Miss Nellie Warner, and two clowns, Wm. Duncan and Wm. Troxell. The parts were all excellently interpreted.

In the awakening of the toys, companies of them appear in song, chorus and motion figures. In the first act the audience is delighted with the Jumping Jacks, Arthur Buehler, Edwards Buehler, James Gilliland, Edward McPherson, Donald McPherson, Hadley Heindel, Robert Hartley, Henry Bream, Edwin Thomas, Wendell Rudisill, Lloyd Sharets.

Noah's Ark Animals are positively funny. They were Benon Alleman, Monkey, Harold Roth, Dog, Ross Sheely, Piggy-wig, Clarence Sheely, Owl, Elmer Slaybaugh, Pussy-cat, Billy Ziegler, Frog.

In the second act two very pretty features introduced by song and in dance were the following:

China Dolls: Louise Bender, Justine Hartley, Jeanne Heindel, Bessie Kelly, Margaret Major, Martha Major, Lorene Roth, Edith Sheely, Evelyn Toot.

Paper Dolls: Mary Adler, Amelia Butt, Sara Butt, Anna Miller, Marian Plank, Henrietta Hersh, Helen Sefton, Marguerite Thibon.

An unannounced feature of this act was the exhibition Maxixe dance by Miss Catherine Duncan and Mr. Schaefer.

In this act appears the Man in the Moon by Stanley Wray, who carries away FI FI the French Doll from her lovers Lieut. Tin Heart and Prince Lolly Pop and their flight to the Milky Way sailing on the crescent moon was a very beautiful picture.

The Great Bear growls at the two and the French Doll comes back in the third act to her toy lovers.

The Letter Blocks, Bonilyn Gilbert, Belle Miller, Blanche Noel, Mabel Galbraith, Lila Myers, Marian Kappes, Rachel Stonaker, Edith Sheads, give a cute exhibition spelling "There is so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us, that it is not wise for any of us to say things about the rest of us."

In the third act the Fairy Queen, Miss Amy Swope decides that as a reward for Lieut. Tin Heart's faithfulness he shall marry FI FI the French Doll, and preparations are made for the wedding.

First came the Christmas Fairies, Anna Deardorff, Anna Eden, Helen Rummel, Elizabeth Schriver, Sara McCullough, Katherine Hartman, Gisela Grimm, Pauline Weaver, Verna Kitzmiller, Thelma Adair, Dorothy Remmel, Irene Williams, Ruth Burgoon, Grace Burgoon, Marguerite Rogers, Nellie Hoffman, Mary Oyer, Evelyn Oyer, Margie Slaybaugh, Helen Hummer, Helen Beales, Maryed Crouse, Mary Jane Snyder, Elizabeth Stallsmith, Louise Ramer, Eleanor Heindel, Rebecca Wible, Anna Vaughn, Clara Baker, Elizabeth Bigham, Margaret Musselman, Edith Smiley, Frieda Troxell, Anna Smiley, Anna Bream Dorothy Bream, Margaret Stauffer, Viola Vandersloot, Frances Grider, Mary Stauffer, Katherine Hill, Evelyn Trimmer, Margaret Taylor, Marian Taylor, Jessica Weaver, Beatrice Minter, Evelyn Thomas, Dorothy Tatum, Geraldine Blair, Anna Thomas, Janet Stonaker, Vera Kadel, Sara Black, Elizabeth Plank.

The finale is introduced by a dance of the bridesmaids led by Miss Frances McClean as solo dancer, those in the feature being Miss Lillian Crawford, Miss Katherine Duncan, Miss Mae Menchey, Miss Catherine Rinehart, Miss Pauline Rudisill, Miss Mary Slaybaugh, Miss Lucy Tawney, Miss Dorothy Zane.

The closing scene is the going to sleep of the toys and the awakening of the toymaker's daughter.

Miss Minnie Lohr, as accompanist added much to the evening with her playing of the music.

To Miss Frances Fritchey belongs the credit of having the show put on here. She has been in charge of the Gettysburg Camp Fire of Jenny Wrens, who had parts in the cast. Edmund A. Kellogg, representing John R. Rodgers, had charge of the two week's training. And the net proceeds amounted $84.12 for the benefit of the New Playground fund.

THE COLLEGIANS.

The Collegian Quartet made its first appearance in the Lyceum two years ago, when it toured a portion of the east and middle west and everywhere met with success. Their program comprises both instrumental and vocal cause and includes songs as well as ensemble numbers.

The program is clear cut, at times indulging in the song, yell and action of the athletic field and at other moments picturing the informal but more serious gathering at the fraternity house and finally closing with an exceptionally bright and captivating little sketch.

The separate Skirt and Waists are very much in demand, a full assortment of each at G. W. Weaver & Son.

is that they are manufactured by a "special process" which so firmly "intertwines" the top hair in the skins, that we are enabled to guarantee them not to shed from ordinary usage. And they cost but a fraction of the price of other Black Furs.

They are non-fading, dazzlingly lustrous, "filmy" soft and moth-proof. The muff-beds will positively not shed. The designs offered are fresh from the salons of renowned Parisian Modistes. The linings are of guaranteed Silks and Satins. They are a purely natural fur trimmed in real Fox tails and paws.

PARK REPORT.

The report of the Gettysburg National Military Park Commission for the last fiscal year to be found in other columns makes very interesting reading, especially the figures. These figures say that last year it took a pay roll of over $28,000 to make new construction work of $4500 and maintenance of $3600. The estimate for next year is a pay roll of over $33,000 to make proposed new construction of $5500 and maintenance of about $2900 and these figures mean that it takes more than $3.00 of overhead salary charges to spend $1.00 on new work. The natural conclusion of this exhibition might mean that the work of the commission is near an end but this conclusion seems forced in the face of the figures in the concluding statement that only 2355 acres or about one-tenth of the land has been bought within the park limits of 24,460 acres. This condition should commend itself to the congressman of the district to secure an appropriation large enough to bring within sight completion of the park.

Charter Granted

A charter was granted Wednesday by Governor John K. Tener to the Oxford Township Light, Heat and Power Company. The directors of the company are Norman S. Heindel, J. Donald Swope and Raymond F. Topper, of Gettysburg.

It is rumored that the intention of the above concern is to electrify the East Berlin Railroad, which was recently purchased by Wm. G. Leas, of East Berlin, and subsequently abandoned. There is, however, no foundation for such rumor, as the purpose of the company is for the supplying of electric light, heat and power to the residents of Oxford Township and to further the interests of the proposed electric road from Conewago Chapel to New Oxford.

Construction on the New Oxford extension of the electric road from Conewago Chapel was started more than a year ago and continued for several months, when it was deemed advisable to suspend operations until charter rights could be perfected to protect future rights of the company. It is quite likely that work will be resumed on the New Oxford extension some time in the near future.

IDAVILLE

Idaville, a small town in Adams County, Pa., was recently visited by a young man and his family. The young man, who is a student at the University of Pennsylvania, was visiting his parents in Idaville. He is a well cultured and estimable young man.

The meeting of the town began at 10:00 A.M. on Sunday evening the 8th.

BATTLEFIELD STATISTICS.

At the Trestle farm one old building was moved. A new metal roof was put on the house and a wood roof on the summerhouse, also repairs to the barn, and new steps were put on south side of house.

At the Codori farm repairs were made to the house and barn; a new concrete curb was built along the front of the barn and the water piped from the house to the barn for use of stock.

The barn on the Bikas farm was covered with a new metal roof.

Water pipe conveying water from west side of the barn to the house, with a new pump at the latter place, was put in at the Althoff place to draw water from the well, a distance of 249 feet.

The Smith property was improved and a new floor for kitchen and wagon house, also a new metal roof on the smokehouse.

New roofs were put on the house and barn at the Wentz place and a new floor in the kitchen.

A new wood roof was put on the house at the Hummelbaugh place and a concrete walk laid on south and east sides of the house. New spouting was put on the house.

The McPherson barn was repaired with a new metal roof and finished May 29, 1914.

PAINTING.

The painters began work early in May on the avenue fencing, the posts, and some of the rails. Many of the gun carriages and tablets had been painted in the first part of the year; others will soon require it. The margins and faces of the letters on the bronze tablets over the field have been cleaned.

CARE OF THE GROVES.

The woodmen continue their work in the woodlands and groves of the park, and have made great improvements in the appearance of these woodlands during the year. The west slope of Little Round Top has been cleared of undergrowth and bushes and now presents the appearance it did during the battle—almost bare of shrubbery.

MOWING.

Two parties of mowers go over the sides of the avenues and other open ground not leased, and around the monuments and markers, mowing and clearing the grounds and keeping it in good order from the time the grass begins to grow in the spring until late in the autumn.

LAND.

There are three tracts of land bordering the avenues of the first day's battlefield, viz.: One tract between Reynolds Avenue and Willoughby Run, one tract between Stone Avenue and Willoughby Run, and one tract bounded on the west by Willoughby Run and lying between the Chambersburg pike and the embankment of the Western Maryland Railroad, all belonging to the Land Improvement Co. and containing a total of 95 acres. This land is desirable, and will probably be acquired this year.

PRINTED MAPS OF THE BATTLEFIELD.

The camp sites selected on this field in 1912 for the fiftieth anniversary encampment in 1913 were shown on a map of the battlefield prepared by the National Park Commission.

The lithographic drawing in the possession of the Public Printer being available for making more copies of said map, the commission ordered 600 copies. These maps were printed and have been distributed and an order has been placed for an additional 500 copies.

BOOK OF THE LOCATION OF MONUMENTS AND MARKERS.

The publication of 1912 giving these locations was a fourth edition and has been widely distributed. It is now exhausted, and a fifth revised edition, with all the information added to date, has been received and is being distributed.

TOWERS AND BRIDGES.

The five steel towers and the two steel bridges, one of the bridges being over the Western Maryland Railroad and one on Hunt Avenue, and the four steel bridges with plank floors over Plum Run are constantly looked after and kept in repair. The steelwork is painted at least once in two years and the flooring of the four bridges renewed upon being found defective.

Plans for building five concrete bridges on the avenues of the east Cavalry field have been completed, the locations fixed, and the foundations built. The work will be completed by the employees of the commission in July 1914. The largest bridge will be reinforced over the arch will require 10 tons of material. The four smaller bridges will require about the same amount. The stone for the concrete has been delivered from the quarry near York, Pa.

The commission has its machinery and tools, also lumber and a variety of material in the storage building on the west side of the field.

There are two steam rollers and one horse roller, which are used to keep the surface of the avenues and the roads in good condition and to keep the gravel in place.

UNITED STATES PUBLIC BUILDING.

This building was erected upon a small parcel of land in the United States. The building was established and the foundation was laid out by Col. E. B. Cose, the engineer of the foundation, and ground was broken August 28, 1911. The contractor to erect the building was Amos S. Standish. The work dragged along until the spring of 1912, and finally ceased. Work was resumed in the autumn of 1912 by new contractors, Pierce & Darby, who have given the work of completing the building their constant attention, and it is now in good shape to be turned over to the United States.

The first floor of this building is for the postoffice exclusively, and all the rooms on the second floor, except one in the northeast corner, are for the use of the Gettysburg National Park Commission. Early in March the chairman was notified that on March 15 the rooms of the second floor would be ready to be occupied, but on that date the building was not ready nor the furniture on hand. Some time after, the Government sent all the furniture and carpets asked for, and these were limited to the actual needs, as the chairman proposed to use much of the old furniture and to have it cleaned and renovated to correspond with the new. This was done by our own workmen, as the furniture was taken out of the Winter building formerly occupied by the commission. These new rooms are very much more convenient and satisfactory in every way than the old quarters.

DAMAGED BY STORM.

A violent windstorm almost a cyclone in some sections, crossed the park on May 27, 1914. A large number of trees were blown down, most of them medium size, 8 to 12 inches diameter, and limbs were scattered in all directions. The force of the cyclone was very great; 12-inch sound hickory trees were twisted off.

Strong Blood

Or weak blood governs for good or ill every part of the body. The medicine that makes weak blood pure and strong is HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. For over a third of a century it has been the leading blood purifier.

Our Central Theme

A wonderful piece of self-analysis, worthy of St. Augustine, which occurs in one of John Donne's funeral sermons gives poignant expression to what must doubtless have been a common condition of so sensitive a brain: "I throw myself down in my chamber, and I call in and invite God and his angels together, and when they are there I neglect God and his angels for the noise of a fly, for the rattling of a coach, for the whining of a dog. I talk on in the same posture of prayer, eyes lifted up, knees bowed down, as though I prayed to God, and if God should ask me when I last thought of God in that prayer I cannot tell. Sometimes I find that I forgot what I was about, but when I began to forget it I cannot tell. A memory of yesterday's pleasures, a fear of tomorrow's dangers, a straw under my knee, a noise in mine ear, a chimera in my brain, troubles me in my prayer."

It is this brain turned inward upon itself, and darting out on every side in purely random excursions that was responsible, I cannot doubt, for all the contradictions of a career in which the inner logic is not at first apparent. —Fortnightly Review.

Hospital Efficiency.

A highly developed efficiency system in saving time and trouble for the staff is used in a London hospital. Indicators bearing the names of the officials, house doctors and some of the staff doctors are located in many rooms and hallways, and these indicators show at all times whether or not any one of the officials is in the hospital and available for consultation. When each doctor comes into the building a button is pressed that makes it known on all the indicators that he has arrived; and when he goes out the indicators are made to record that fact. The indicators also show the word "engaged," which means that the official or doctor is not to be disturbed—a push on a button in the official's room accomplishing this. Thus, in any part of the hospital, at any time, each doctor knows and each nurse knows when the various officials and doctors may be asked to give attention to any matter. —Saturday Evening Post.

Gods of Machinery.

The ceremony of propitiating the gods which are supposed to reside in the printing machinery is annually performed by the Hindu members of the Times of Malaya printing staff. The usually prosaic machine and composing rooms are turned into weird caverns of mystery, dimly lit by candles and oil lamps, and odorized with the heavy scent of incense and perfumes. Every machine is garlanded, and has placed before it an offering of "makan." Rice and bananas and cakes are the portion of each machine according to its size and importance; even the "stone" comes in for a share of the gifts. At the appointed time braziers, containing smoking camphor and coconut oil, are carried round and held before each machine, while the power engine, whose god presumably is regarded as a particularly aggressive personage, is "smoked" for a special long period. —Times of Malaya.

Von Moltke and His Snuff.

During the Prussian advance in the Franco-Prussian war Von Moltke continually took pinches of snuff. When he was told that MacMahon was marching northward he exclaimed, "He is surely mad!" and forthwith nearly emptied his snuffbox as he retired to his tent to organize the plans that culminated in the tremendous conflict of Sedan. At the end of the war Von Moltke received a bill from the military stores with this item: "For one pound of snuff supplied to General Von Moltke, 1 thaler." The great soldier paid it without a murmur.

Accounting For Patrick Henry.

It is related that Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase on stopping at the birthplace of Patrick Henry in Virginia exclaimed: "What an atmosphere! What a view! What glorious mountains! No wonder Patrick Henry grew here!" Whereupon an honest native dryly remarked that the atmosphere, the view and the mountains had been there for ages, but that only one Patrick Henry had been produced.

Quite a Difference.

When a woman winds a towel around her head and calls for a bucket of water it means the beginning of a hot day, but when a man winds a towel around his head and calls for water it means the end of a hot night. —Atlantic Constitution.

Sea Otter Skins.

Sea otter skins measure 48 by 24 inches. The best color is a dark bluish brown, almost black. A perfect skin in this color is worth $4,000.

Habit, if not resisted, soon becomes necessity.

Push, But No Pull.

Sir Oliver Lodge claims that there is no such thing as pull applied to bodies—that is, that an engine, for instance, never pulls a train, but really pushes it. A little excursion into what he means will readily convince the skeptic that he is right. Take this example: The coupling of the engine extends behind that of the car following and does actually shove it forward. The reason it comes forward is because its parts do not separate—that is, it has cohesion.

But the actual force administered is that of a push and not a pull. Take a rope pulling a safe up to a window. It is wrapped under the safe, and that is the part that is exerting the force and urging the safe upward, the other parts of the rope simply sticking together. When we pull our coats off we really push them off, for the force is exerted behind the object in the direction of motion, and, as every one knows, that is called a push.

So if we really desire to speak in chastely scientific terms we should say push our coats off, push our hats off, push a safe up through a window. —Chicago Record-Herald.

The Star Arcturus.

It is probable that the star Arcturus is one of the six greatest of all the stars in the sky. Notwithstanding its brightness, it is so far away from us that it is not displaced in position to the slightest measurable degree, as we change our position 186,000,000 miles in our annual journey around the sun. Could we be placed midway between Arcturus and our sun we would receive thousands of times more light and heat from the star than from our sun and this notwithstanding that the star's radiation is smothered by a dense blanket of metallic vapors. In spite of its immense distance the star is drifting slowly in a southwestward direction over the face of the sky, its motion changing its apparent position by an amount equal to the diameter of the moon in the course of about 1,000 years. So great an apparent motion must indicate an enormous velocity in space.

Fairly Warned.

One of Australia's best landscape painters was out with his bag of tricks near Daylesford recently. He had pitched in front of an old, two roomed, wattle and dab hut, softened with a crimson flowered creeper, which he thought would make an excellent sketch. While he was working a tall, hairy man came out of the hut and regarded him with some misgiving. The hut dweller approached. "Watcher doin', mister?" he said. "I'm painting your picturesque dwelling," said Patterson. The hut dweller regarded Patterson dubiously for a minute, then went indoors. Presently he reappeared with his wife, and the two advanced toward the artist. "Mind yeh," said the man, pointing at the painter. "I've got my witness. You're doin' this at your own expense."

Asiatics Use Goatskin Churns.

Goatskin churns are the proper thing in the Asiatic deserts. They are the unique butter making contrivances of the world. These churns resemble gigantic footballs, varying in size according to the extent of the family. They are constructed of goatskin sewed together in the form of a ball, with the hair side in. Cream is run into these bags until they are about half full and the balance of the space is filled with air from the churner's lungs. Then these churns are suspended from three sticks and a rocking motion begun. The air on the inside is calculated to aid coaxing the butter from the cream. After churning the product is strained through cloth, for the goat's hair has a tendency to shed during the violent operations.

A Book She Wouldn't Read.

"There is one book of Mr. Stevenson's that I myself have never read," said Mrs. Stevenson once. "I refused to read it and held to my refusal. I make it a rule never to read a novel the scene of which is laid in a bygone age. The author always deems it his duty to make his characters talk in what he considers the language of that period, and I am always sure that he doesn't know positively how they did talk, so I won't read such books. I would never read 'The Black Arrow,' and Mr. Stevenson thought it such a good joke that he insisted upon dedicating it to me."
